3 CELE PRZEDMIOTU

Cel 1 Study of basic macroeconomic concepts in relation to various economic issues in the European Union countries, such as opening of the labor markets, aging of population, spillover effects of trade and capital flows, with a focus upon the European-style socially-oriented model of development.

Cel 2 Obtaining basic skills of the analysis within the fields of income accounting and the balance-of-payments, consumption and saving decisions, capital and labor market functioning.

Cel 3 Making use of formal economic constructions, as IS-LM-BP and AD-AS models, for analytical interpretation of such applied issues as (a) capital flows between EU countries, (b) excessive debt accumulation, (c) determination of nominal and real exchange rates, (d) macroeconomic policy coordination.

Cel 4 Ability of independent evaluation of macroeconomic (monetary and fiscal) policies in either core European Union countries or the Central and Eastern European (CEE) countries.

4 WYMAGANIA WSTĘPNE W ZAKRESIE WIEDZY, UMIEJĘTNOŚCI I INNYCH KOMPETENCJI

1 Knowledge of basic economic concepts.

2 Solution of linear equations.

5 EFEKTY KSZTAŁCENIA

EK1 Wiedza Student demonstrates a proper command of income and balance-of-payment accounting and such concepts as the real exchange rate and law of one price within the framework of standard textbook macroeconomic models, being able to distinguish pros and cons of the consumption-led vs. export-led growth, as well socially-oriented vs. liberal economic development model. Modern challenges to various national models of economic development should be understood.

EK2 Umiejętności Student is able to interpret analytically within the framework of the saving-investment balance policy implications of several macroeconomic developments, such as changes in the consumption pattern, aging of population, public and private debt accumulation etc.

EK3 Wiedza Student is able to explain most important links between income redistribution and long-term growth, as contrasted with standard neoclassical and human capital growth models. Student distinguishes between traditional and endogenous growth factors, being able to discuss actual proposals for the innovation policies, educational goals and globalization challenges to the European countries.

EK4 Umiejętności Student has analytical qualifications for a thorough analysis of the fiscal-monetary mix within the framework of IS-LM-BP and AD-AS models, being able to explain effects of demand and supply shocks as well as the pros and cons of stabilisation policies.

EK5 Wiedza Student is able to discuss basic features of the monetary union, requirements of the Stability and Growth Pact (SGP), relationship between tax competition and income inequality, challenges for policy coordination in the European Union, arguments in favor of the Eurozone accession as well potential risks in the case of leaving it.

EK6 Umiejętności Student analyzes the relationship between demand and supply on the labor market and understands the concept of the natural rate of unemployment and jobless growth. Based on the Phillips curve, the income-inflation trade-off is analyzed, within the context of the European countries.

EK7 Wiedza Student explains the problem of selection in international migration and relevant costs-benefits balance for donor and source countries. Recent experience of European countries with opening of their labor markets is analyzed.

EK8 Kompetencje społeczne Student explains different aspects of economic growth in the CEE countries, as trade and capital flows openness, the fiscal-monetary mix and the choice of the exchange rate regime. Several other issues are to be discussed: stabilisation policies of 2008-2009 and post-crisis recovery in the CEE countries, challenges of the COVID-19 lockdown, approaches for human capital accumulation, effectiveness of local investment policies etc.
